

manufacturing business. Long Island corporations, such as Reeves Instruments of Garden City, with its twelve-hundred jobs, are leaving the state. They plainly state that it is the exorbitant taxes and climate here in New York that is driving them out. Reeves is moving to Florida where the corporate tax is 2 percent of that of New York. Look at the new business growth in New Jersey, Delaware and Connecticut, to mention just a few, and you get an idea of where former New York State tax paying companies are relocating with all their good jobs.

TRANSPORTATION: Forgotten in this election campaign is the governor's insistence that eastern Long Island, and particularly Calverton, be the site of the next metropolitan jet port. The subject has been quieted to soothe the nerves of the eastern Long Island voter, but, rest assured, the matter will be resurrected vigorously again after November. Couple this with Rockefeller's socialization of the Long Island Railroad (a disaster of the first magnitude) and you can see how attuned he is to our transportation problems. Rockefeller's liberal philosophy says that if you spend enough money, any problem will go away. This is simply not true. Money is part of the answer, but competent people is the basic ingredient. Mr. Rockefeller's "competent" person is William Ronan. Mr. Ronan was touted as the Hercules who would rid us of our transportation problems. Mr. Ronan is an incompetent political appointee without experience in the transportation field. The results of his mismanagement are obvious. The Long Island Railroad is probably the worst in the nation. Its inability to be on time, its unsafe cars, its Toonerville Trolley atmosphere boggle the mind. All of the transportation facilities under Mr. Ronan's aegis suffer from the same lack of inspired and enlightened management. Couple this with the 2.5 billion dollar transportation bond issue insisted upon by Rockefeller, which our children will still be saddled with, and you can only conclude that you are asking for more if our governor is reelected.

INFLATION: One of the basic causes of inflation is an over-abundance of money in proportion to the availability of goods. The supply of money is increased when wages are hiked. Apart from the broader national issues which contribute heavily to inflation, New York, under Rockefeller, has led the nation in the spiraling minimum wage. He has pushed the minimum wage above the national minimum regularly thus increasing the cost of goods. The result is that those who are retired or are on a fixed income find it increasingly difficult to get along on their income. It is a crime that those prudent people who have planned for their retirement years must bear the burden of Rockefeller's inflationary policies. Not only that, but he has expanded the size and scope of the state bureaucracy which has fed inflation substantially. Rockefeller certainly did not have the retired, those on fixed incomes, those who are at the zenith of their earning power or those who must hold down two jobs to survive in mind when he contributed to inflation. He had his obligations to the labor unions and met their demands for a higher minimum wage in order to secure their political endorsement. We have all paid and will continue to do so if we have the misfortune to have to endure another Rockefeller term of office. Can we stand any more of Rockefeller's contributions to inflation? We think not.

ECOLOGY: Make your own comparisons and draw your own conclusions on the pollution problem as it exists today and how it was twelve years ago. Were our coastal waters and ocean cleaner then or now? Was the air cleaner then or now? Were fish more fit to eat then? Did you find human waste floating in the Sound like you do today? Where does Rockefeller's liberal school at Stony Brook dump its sewage? Where does the veterans hospital at Northport dump its waste? Who allows them to perpetuate pollution? Mr. Clean himself. As we see it, Mr. Rockefeller's main contribution to the ecology situation was to get passed the one-billion dollar clean water bond issue. This has put our children in hock, but we don't think it has really solved anything.

HOME RULE: Rockefeller has indicated his interest in protecting our right to home rule, our local master plans and zoning ordinances by passing on the state low-cost housing corporation. This permits anyone to build low-cost housing anywhere without regard to local zoning restrictions or master plans. This could completely upset the balance of community needs which planners must take into consideration. Schools, public services, business, the economy and taxes could be adversely affected by this. Rockefeller OK'd this over the strident objections of most local officials.

Rockefeller cares not about our local areas or our desires but only for his reelection. He will pay any price to achieve his goal and the price is being paid by the taxpayer.

TAXES: Rockefeller's liberal legacy costs us a great deal of money. Everyone now has to pay a state withholding tax. Everyone now has to pay sales taxes. Businesses are being taxed to the hilt and many businesses are leaving the state because of the tax burden. Property taxes have skyrocketed to pay for state-mandated welfare, school and governmental costs. Gasoline taxes have been increased; liquor and cigarette taxes have spiraled. Hidden taxes are part of every dollar we pay out, and we pay more for goods in New York State than in any other state in the union. We pay more taxes in New York than do the residents of any other state. Every man, woman and child contributes $576 annually to the state coffers. Our direct indebtedness is now at 2.6 billion dollars and we are committed to 1.5 billion in indirect borrowing. This is over twenty times what it was when Rockefeller first took office. Our indebtedness is so crushing that it is hard to peddle New York State bonds and their interest rates have skyrocketed. The state controller predicts that next year we will have to find substantial new means of taxation if we are to remain solvent. Can you really afford any more of Rockefeller's liberal legacy?

Rockefeller's liberal policies have been a very expensive luxury. He has proven that there is no Santa Claus in government. Everything he has given us we have paid dearly for. Our children will continue paying his debts. New York has become a sewer of drug addiction, our ecology is blighted, we are a welfare haven, business is leaving and taxes are going out of sight. Rockefeller has been very bad for New York. He has done irreparable harm. He must not be returned to office.

Mr. Rockefeller's Democratic opponent would not be the lesser of two evils but just a continuation of the same ruinous policies. Goldberg is also a liberal and, to date, has failed to come up with any sound proposals to solve New York's problems. He is not even a New Yorker and was picked by the bosses because of his name and prominence. They are hoping that an ethnic slate of candidates, with a prominent figurehead, will be strong enough to bump Rockefeller. We think that the voters of New York deserve more. Frankly, Goldberg doesn't even deserve the space we are giving him here.

Our choice for governor of New York is a man who offers practical and realistic solutions to the problems facing us. He is a man of integrity and conviction. We have talked to him personally and at length and he is brilliant and as down-to-earth as anyone we have ever met. For the past four years he has journeyed from one end of New York to the other. He knows what New York really needs - honest and dedicated leadership. Paul Adams is our choice, and next week's editorial will spell out why we think he should be YOUR choice. In the meantime, you might consider why it is so all-fired important that you continue to vote the party line that you have in the past. Why not vote for someone who believes - really believes - the way you do. And why not?

Willmott's and Why-Not's

Buckley For U.S. Senator

As in the New York gubernatorial race, the voters have a choice between two very similar candidates of the two major parties and the uniquely qualified candidate of the Conservative Party. Ottinger, a liberal, is running as a Democrat; Goodell, a Republican, is running like a liberal and James Buckley, a registered Republican, is running on the Conservative ticket. Jim Buckley offers the voters a refreshing return to responsibility in politics and government.

Ottinger and Goodell, the two liberal thinking candidates, promise nothing more than a continuation of governmental permissiveness and increased spending. As politicians, in form and substance, they are the same, they only differ in method. They both castigate President Nixon. They both advocate outright pullout of Viet Nam regardless of the consequences. They have both promised much more than they can possibly deliver on the domestic scene. They are, in a word, unbelievable.

In the other corner is a man who many have compared in personality and public style to John F. Kennedy; James Buckley is aptly described by that old sobriquet reserved for patriots as an ALL-American. Indeed, you have read in the papers and watched on television this Jim Buckley cheered and mobbed by well-wishers of every political persuasion. The reason for this is that though we are sometimes divided by our conflicting political ideologies, Jim Buckley's thoughts, ideals and love of country cross party lines. He possesses that charisma, lacking in most politicians, of the true statesman and leader. Jim Buckley is supported by conservative, moderate and independent voters in the Republican, Democratic and Conservative parties in New York because he tells us simply and honestly things that we know in our own hearts are true and right.

From the outset, it was the purpose of the Conservative Party to bring the Republican Party back into the mainstream of things and wrestle control of the party from the liberal element. Buckley is doing just that, and not only is he doing it but, according to public opinion, he stands a great chance of winning this election.

One look at where Jim Buckley stands on the issues will tell you why he is so popular with people from every economic, social and educational level across the length and breadth of New York State. He is for ending the war in Viet Nam as soon as possible - but with honor. He supports President Nixon who has brought thousands of our troops home on schedule. He is for the President's Vietnamization program which, had it been instituted years earlier, would undoubtedly have saved countless thousands of American lives. The point is that Jim Buckley feels as the majority of people do in this country. He wants us out of Viet Nam as soon as possible but not at the kind of accelerated pace that would cause us to lose the ground we have given up so many lives for. Jim Buckley wants communism stopped.

Jim Buckley knows that liberty demands respect for law. He understands that respect for law is the cornerstone of order in America and without law we have anarchy and mob rule. He feels that the government must be able to protect you on the street, in any public place or at home. He does not condone the coddling of criminals. He knows that violence and the deterioration in our fight against crime are the two major preoccupations with New Yorkers today. You won't find Jim Buckley marching with radical demonstrators like Mr. Goodell. You will find him proposing and backing legislation that takes a very hard line on law-breaking. He will insist that the courts back up the police who put their lives on the line to maintain order. He wants justice for all -- the man on welfare and the man with millions, minority groups and the majority. He will settle for nothing less.

Jim Buckley wants the sources of narcotics supplies closed down. He believes that realistic rehabilitation programs for addicts are necessary. He wants France to shut down its narcotics processing plants in Marseilles or, he feels, the U. S. might seriously consider severing diplomatic relations with that country. He would have the U. S. clamp down on American manufacturers of amphetamines. Over 8 billion doses are manufactured annually, yet the estimated need for dosage is only in the thousands. Jim Buckley wants our courts to hand out sentences that will stop the use and selling of drugs - dead. As Senator he will be our best hope on the Federal level to see that they do.

These are only a few of the issues that Jim Buckley offers sound solutions to. It has been a long, long time since a man of his stature has looked to the people of New York State for their vote of confidence. In 1968, over one million New Yorkers voted for him; this year, let's put him over the top. Vote Row "C". And why not?

National Environment Act, they do have jurisdiction. They have ordered Levon to refrain from further mining without their prior approval. We now have renewed hope that this rape of our area, which is almost certain to damage our water supply, can be halted. This is wonderful news. We congratulate the Army Corps of Engineers on this move.

The bad news is that our county and local town governments have just submitted their preliminary budgets. They are disastrous. Combined, they call for a real estate tax raise in some towns of over $1 per hundred dollars of assessed valuation. Our elected officials are blaming the raise on increased welfare costs. Welfare is a big item but it certainly isn't the whole story.

The cost of government itself has skyrocketed. Our legislators have given themselves, if the figures are approved, pay raises of as much as 35 percent. To justify their own raises, needless to say, they had to bow to the wishes of all other government employees and give them healthy raises also. This is all on top of last year's staggering increases.

We know of several instances of particular town officials who do not deserve the salary they are now getting. They are abusing the offices they hold. If they were working for anything but public office they would have been fired long ago. To ask us to grant them raises is ludicrous. We urge all residents of their towns to find out when the budget hearings are being held and to get to those meetings and sound off. Make your voice heard at the budget hearing. If you don't take an active part in your government all of the letters of complaint to editors of newspapers aren't worth a hoot. And why not?

MRS. MICHAEL F. O'SHEA

With her dark hair, bright blue eyes and fair skin, Rosa O'Shea still looks like a colleen after having four children. Michael, Jr., 10, and Tom, 9, go to St. John's School in Riverhead. Her only daughter, Misty, is five and arrived home from kindergarten at the same time we knocked at the door of the O'Shea house on the hill of winding West Woodland Drive in Wading River. We met Misty and then Terrence, who is four. Mrs. O'Shea calls him her "Terrible Terry." Terry was so glad to see his sister and so envious of the jack-o-lantern crayon drawing she'd brought home, he only managed to be terribly noisy!

Mr. O'Shea has run for office twice before so Rosa was prepared for the typing and mailing involved in the campaign. She was a secretary before her marriage, so this is the best way she can help her husband. The dining-room is their office, so they'll be eating in the kitchen or on trays in the living-room until after election. Rosa is a Committee Woman of the Conservative Party and attends all of the meetings.

Michael O'Shea designed and built their six-room house mostly by himself, even the huge, raised fireplace that really works without smoking. Rosa makes all the slip covers, curtains and draperies. She learned to sew at evening sessions of Cooperative
